TN Assembly session to be held outside secretariat

CHENNAI, ^{27/8/20}PHNS: Extraordinary situations call for extraordinary solutions. For the first time, the Tamil Nadu Assembly is likely to hold its session outside of the designated hall next month.

Since it would be impossible to hold the session in the existing Assembly hall due to space crunch, Speaker P Dhanapal is understood to have decided to move the session to a much larger auditorium to ensure physical distancing among legislators.

A multi-purpose auditorium in the rebuilt Kalaivanar Arangam, a few kilometres from the current Assembly premises, is likely to hold the monsoon session of the Tamil Nadu Assembly.

While the session was always conducted inside the Fort St George, the seat of power of the Tamil Nadu government, the Assembly had functioned from the new secretariat for about a year in 2010-2011 during the DMK regime. However, the AIADMK government led by the then Chief Minister J Jayalalithaa moved the secretariat back to Fort St George in May 2011.
