JP MLCs Tejaswini Gowda and Bharathi Shetty walked out of the legislative council on Wednesday, saying they were disgusted by the way Congress members had discussed the sex CD case, which allegedly involves former minister Ramesh Jarkiholi.

"Since the government has clarified that it is investigating the matter, the opposition should have dropped the issue. But by discussing the alleged CD contents, opposition legislators showed their mindset," Tejaswini said. She asked if Congress members would have discussed the issue this way if their family members were present in the house.
